FOREWORD

As we edit the twelfth copy of our yearbook, Portland is celebrating its Three Hundredth Anniversary; therefore, it seems most fitting that we should call to mind some of the milestones along the way of progress. In 1623 Christopher Leavitt came to this country from England and dreamed of the great city he would found. The dream failed of realization, and it remained for Cleeves and Tucker to make a settlement here in 1632. Then followed turbulent days when French and Indian wars all but wiped out the little settlement. These were followed by a short period of peace, until, in 1775, the city was bombed by Mowatt and destroyed. Again came a period of growth, and 1807 saw the construction of the Observatory from whose lookout in 1813 eager eyes witnessed the arrival in port of the Boxer and the Enterprise. This period also witnessed the visit of General Lafayette to Portland in 1825. In 1832, just one hundred years ago, the charter was granted to the city. Then came the Civil War when Portland responded to the call of duty, and soon after this, the great fire of July 4, 1866. From the ashes there rose a modern and more beautiful city, which we know today as the Portland of 1932. Therefore, the main theme of our TOTEM, Anniversaries, has proved an interesting subject with which to work, and it is our hope that our city will continue to grow and prosper as it has in the past.

DEDICATION

To Portland, that beautiful city seated by the sea, to her famous sons and daughters, to her energetic citizens, to Portland, the Sunrise Gateway of America, we, the students of Portland High School dedicate our Yearbook for 1932. Of her beautiful parks, promenades, and abundant natural scenery, her stadium and many smaller recreation fields, Portland may be justly proud. Her harbor, the nearest port to Europe, is excelled by none on the Atlantic Seaboard and furnishes a Port of Entry to Northern New England and, in winter, to parts of Canada.

Portland is the leading city of one of the leading states of the nation. She has given to the United States some of its greatest men, prominent among whom are Commodore Preble, Henry W. Longfellow, Neal Dow, Thomas B. Reed, Robert E. Peary, and Cyrus H. K. Curtis, who is still living. Facing the world with ideals which were subject to ridicule and satire, these sturdy citizens proved their determination and sense of duty by remaining true to their creed, and in the end won their battle.

In celebrating the Three Hundredth Anniversary of its founding and the One Hundredth Anniversary of its city charter, Portland may look back with pride upon its record and achievements and feel that it may justly take its place among the great cities of the nation.

PORTLAND HEAD LIGHT

One of the most famous lighthouses on the Atlantic seaboard. It was the first ever erected by the American Government, and it still stands, faithfully flashing its warning to approaching mariners.

DEERING'S OAKS

A favorite rendezvous of the poet Longfellow. Many of the happiest hours of his boyhood were spent in the Oaks, which he later immortalized in his famous poem, "My Lost Youth."

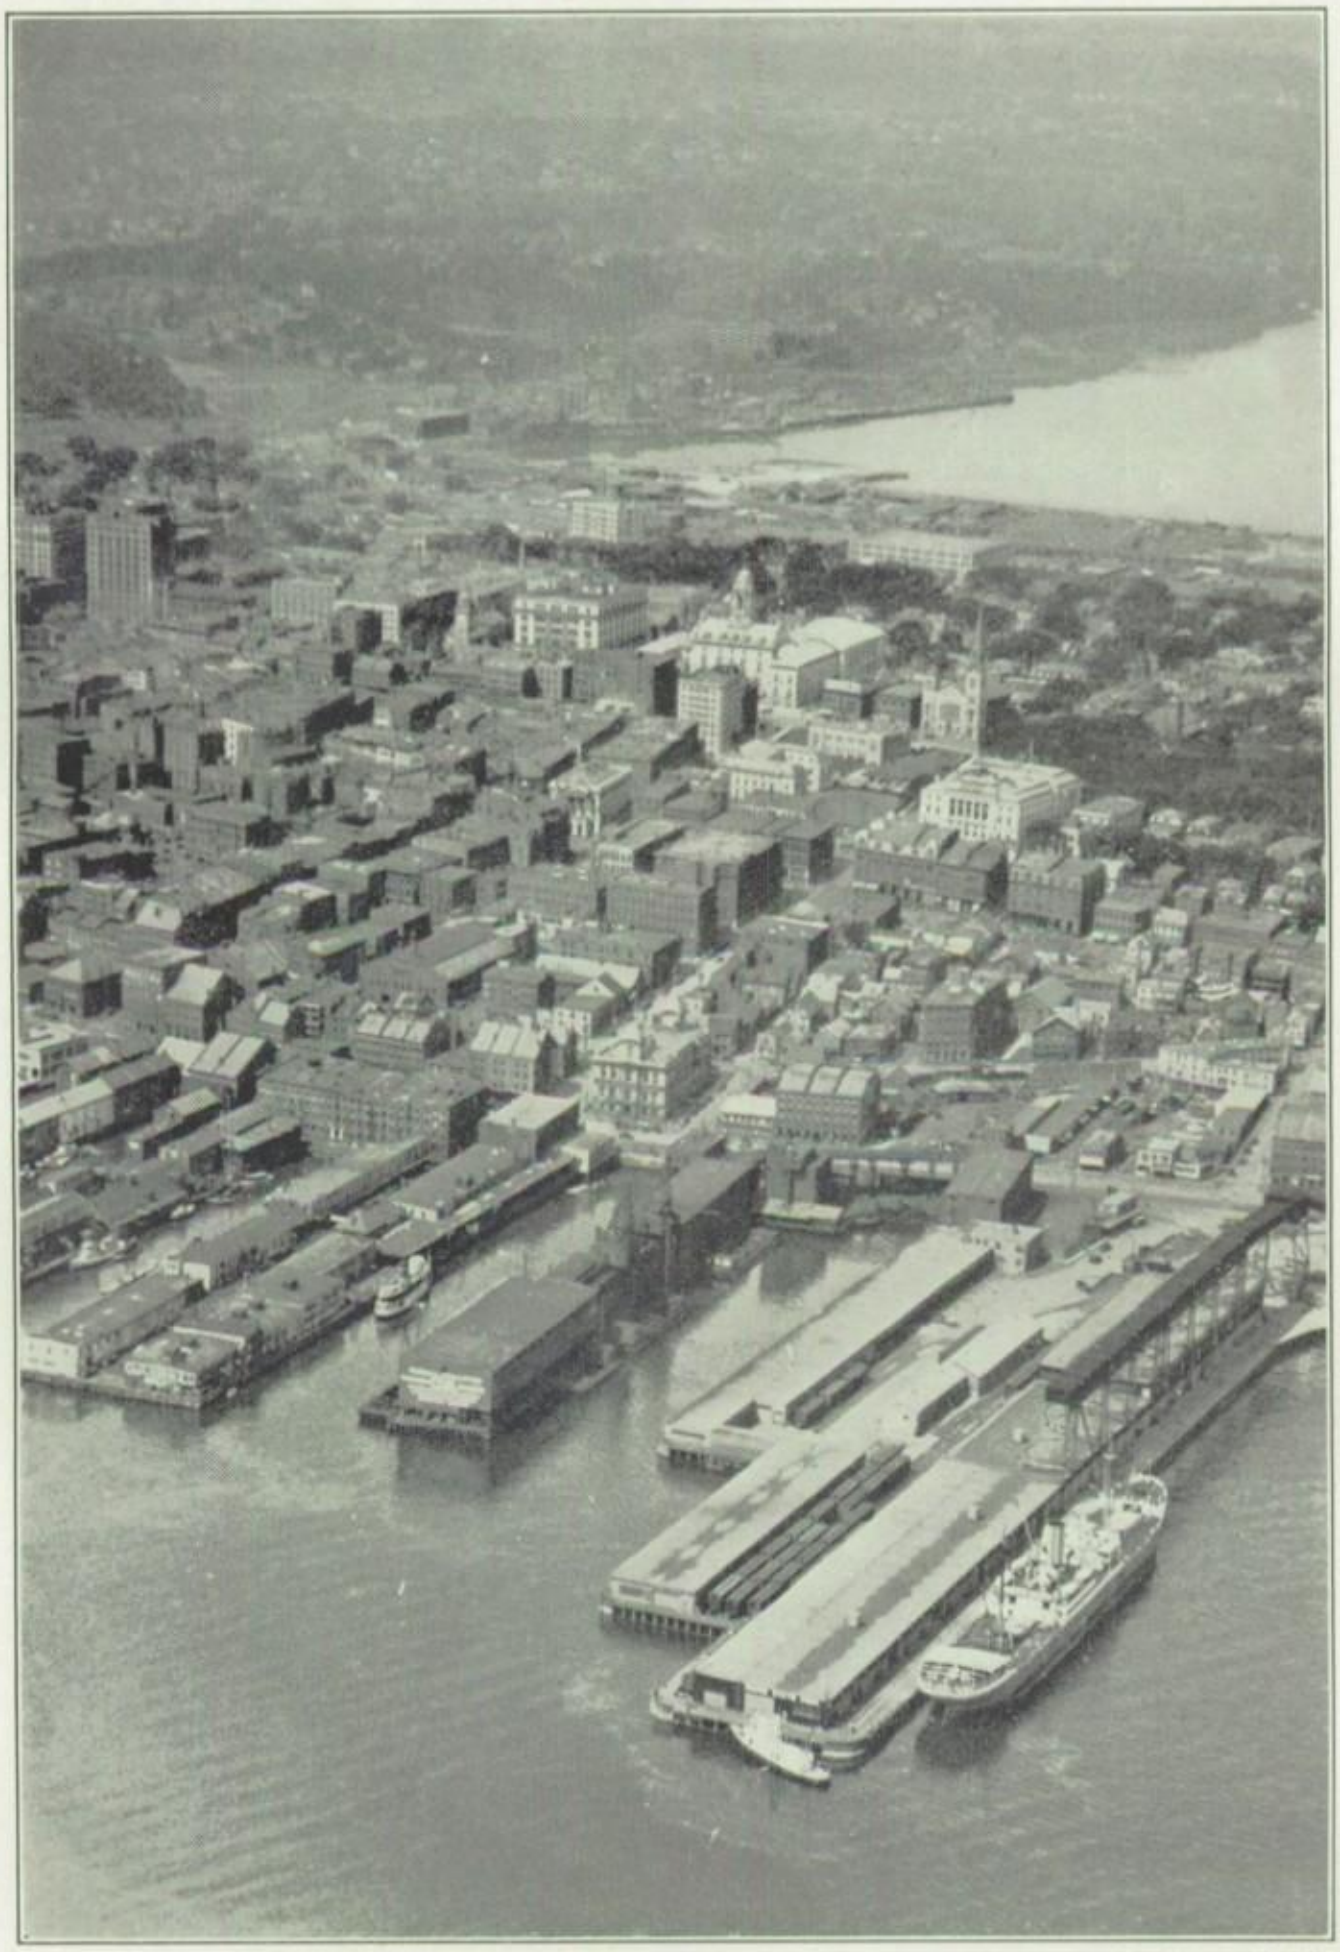
OLD WATERFRONT SCENE

"I remember the black wharves and the slips,
And the sea tides tossing free;
And the beauty and mystery of the ships,
And the magic of the sea."



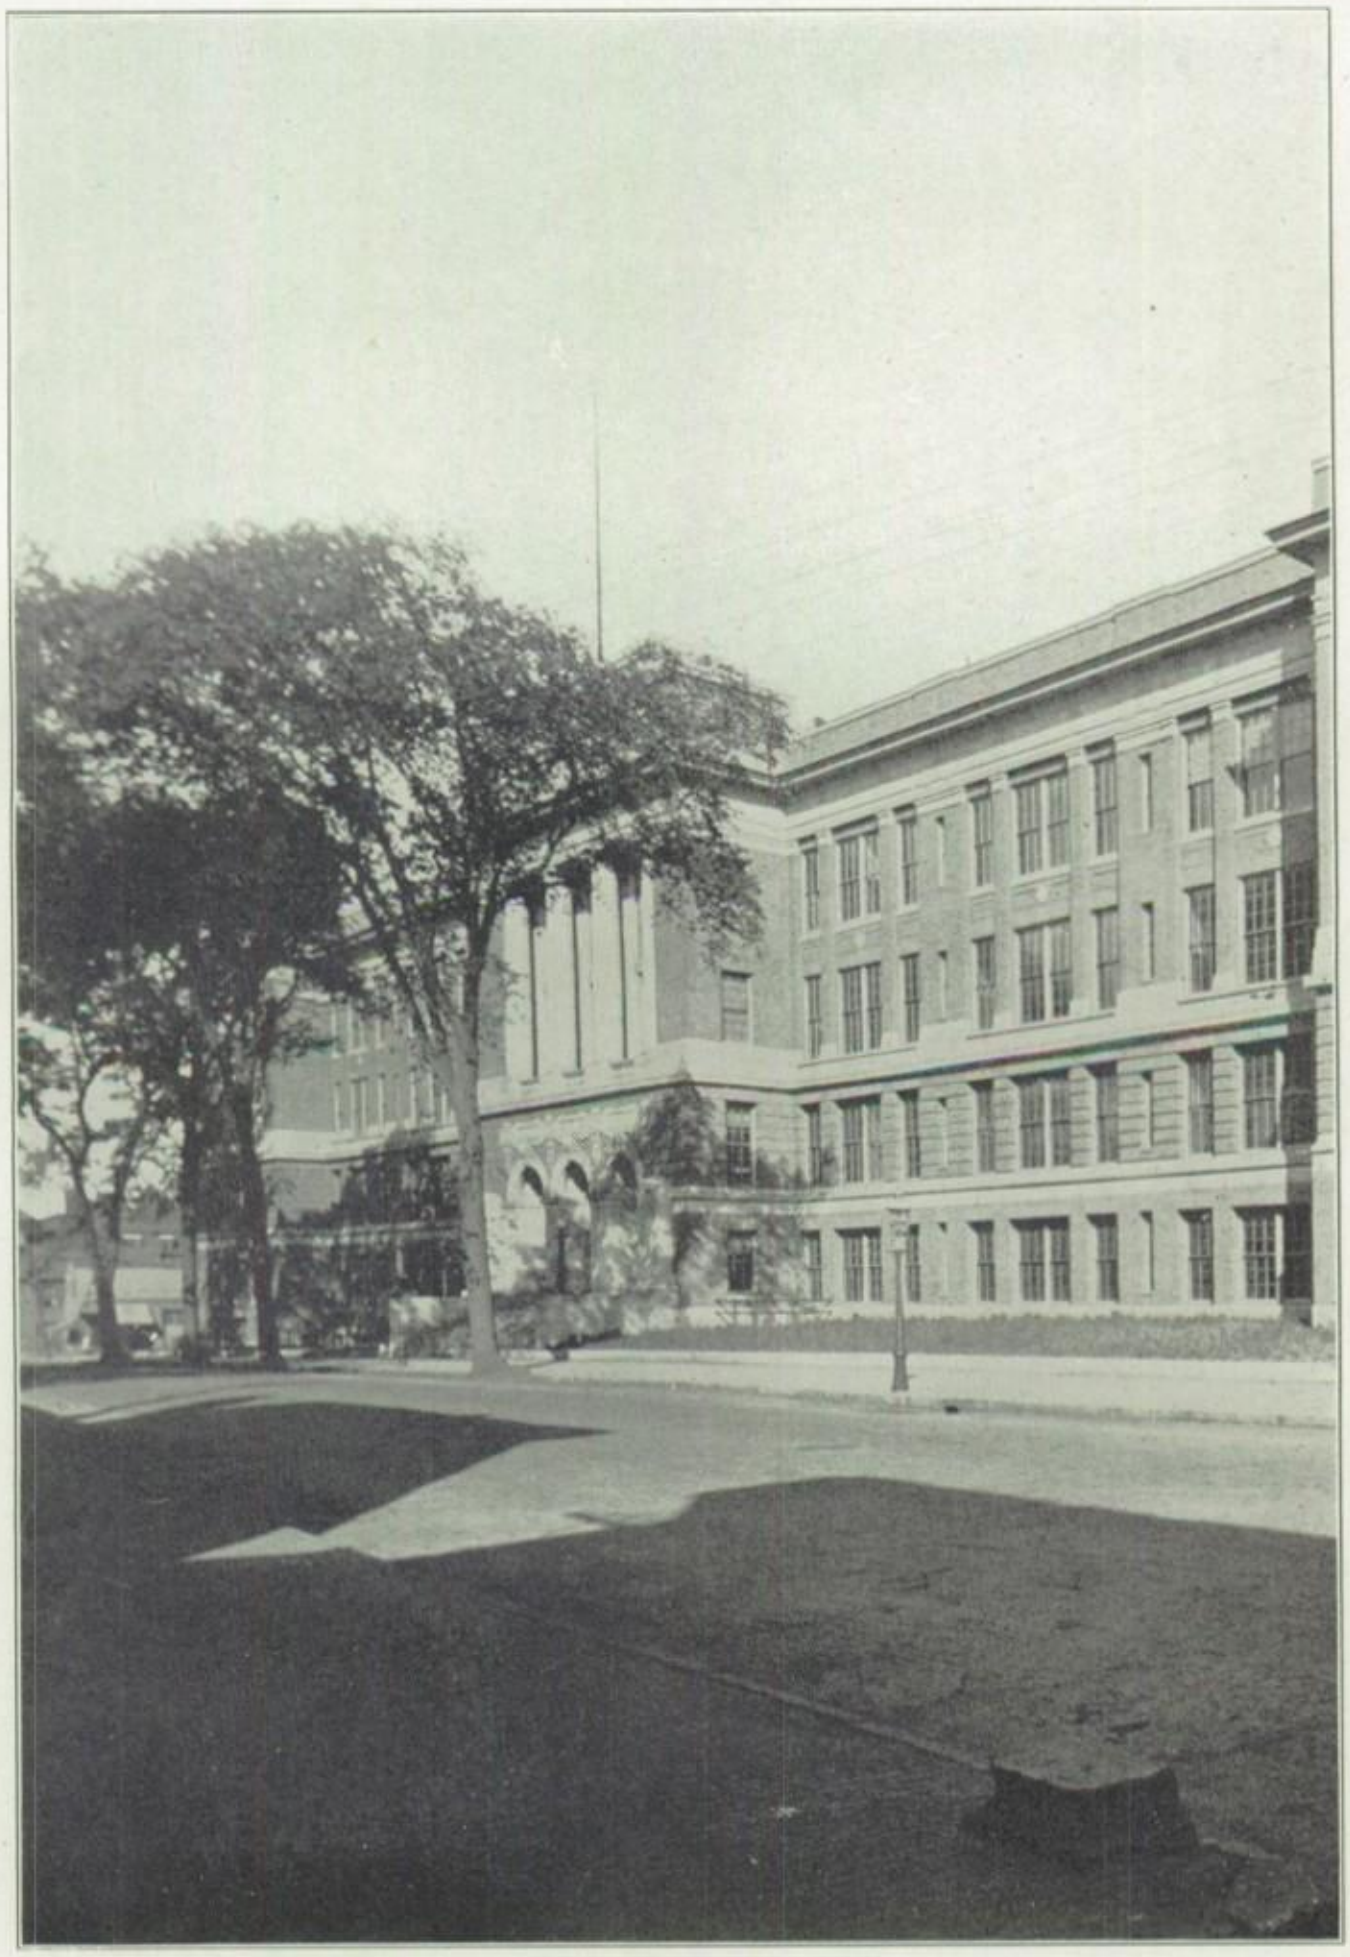
By Victor Kahill

THE SUNRISE GATEWAY TO AMERICA

"Often I think of the beautiful town
That is seated by the sea;
Often in thought go up and down
The pleasant streets of that dear old town."

PORTLAND HIGH SCHOOL IN THE PAST

This structure, built in 1863, was the outgrowth of the Boys' High School on Spring Street. It served the city until practically destroyed by fire in 1911.



PORTLAND HIGH SCHOOL TODAY

Built around the site of the old building, our new High School Building was formally opened in 1919. After a fire in 1920, the central wing was rebuilt.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

Since the eleventh and twelfth centuries, when the Anglo-Saxon tongue and the Norman French united to form our English language, the various English-speaking peoples have constantly increased the high quality and excellence of their language through new examples of racy speech and great works in prose and poetry. The masterpieces, left behind by many poets, dramatists, and essayists, whose anniversaries are celebrated by every generation, are familiar to all high school graduates. What student does not know Milton, Shakespeare, Johnson, Dickens, Scott, Browning, Tennyson, and our own poets—Longfellow, Emerson, Lowell, and Whittier, through the study of English in the high school? It is through the medium of the English Department that the beauty of our language is traced and the works of great authors made familiar to all students in whatever course they may be.

In addition to the study of literature, for the Commercial and Vocational student, the English Department provides the necessary drills for the proper use of words, spelling, grammar, and rhetoric—the essential requirements for a successful life in the business world today. For the student preparing for college, this Department also offers a thorough study of all the classics required for college entrance.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

The English Department plays a large part in school activities, such as the school publications, public speaking and debating, and the celebration of various anniversaries. Every year this Department undertakes some special study in connection with the regular English work. This year it has chosen the gathering of material to celebrate the Three Hundredth Anniversary of the founding of our city by Cleeves and Tucker in 1632 and the One Hundredth Anniversary of the Charter of the city. These papers are written in connection with the regular class work and include historic highlights from 1632. In some classes individual magazines are being made. Facts gathered from all this research and composition work will be incorporated in a handbook compiled by the two city high schools, Deering and Portland, and this book is to be used as a reference book by the pupils of the lower grades.

The English courses, furthermore, should be regarded as a medium through which one learns to express himself correctly and forcibly. Since every student in school must take four years of English, he should leave school well equipped to fill his place adequately among the well educated men and women of the English-speaking world.

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

Ever since the time of the ancients, the various phases of pure science have been increasing in importance until today they are so closely united with our every-day life that a knowledge of their meaning and of their reference to our life is absolutely necessary. Our Science Department offers a course through which any one interested may gain this knowledge.

Physics presents a study of the principles of mechanics, electricity, light, heat, and sound—all important factors in our daily life. Chemistry is the study of the composition and properties of the various matter on the earth that affect our daily life. Geography, far different from the old style subject, gives an interesting account of relationships of men, and an insight into the commercial value of the various nations of the world. General science brings to the average student the meaning and relation of science to industry and ordinary life. Biology, with its laboratory work, introduces the student to the wonders of the human body and nature in general.

The courses in the Science Department are interesting and practical. They help the student to understand why the world is as it is, and how we are related to it.

HISTORY DEPARTMENT

We realize the value of history more this year than ever before. Without history all the important facts which have been collected through the ages would never have been preserved. Stories would have come down from mouth to mouth through generations, and like other stories told from one to another, would have lost fact and gained fiction. We should probably know little about the founding of Portland in 1632 by George Cleeves and Richard Tucker, or about the stirring events which took place in this little colony. The granting of our city charter would also be just an old tale, as would our early wars and hardships. Although Washington would doubtless have lived in the minds of the people, we should not know many of the interesting facts that make him not only a hero, but also a human being.

History is indispensable from an economic viewpoint. History of terrible wars is making the countries desirous of peace. History of past depressions has cheered the people to keep on, hoping and struggling instead of becoming discouraged. And so this oneness of experience and development makes us realize that all the nations are but one great family forever joined by means of the common heritage, history.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

Now that girls are employed so universally in business offices of this and other countries, it is increasingly necessary that schools have up-to-date Commercial Departments such as we have in Portland High School.

In this department young people who are not able to go to college or to some other school of higher learning, receive training along lines which will give them good employment immediately after leaving school. They are taught arithmetic, bookkeeping and accounting, business law, economics, commercial English, and stenography, all of which are necessary in the business world.

Since an efficient stenographer or secretary to a prominent business man is usually taken into his confidence, if she is alert and ambitious, she will soon know a great deal about the business. Many general managers started as stenographers. If, on the other hand, the superior is a man interested in politics, his secretary will also learn much about this subject. Some of our leading statesmen received their training in the employ of a statesman of an earlier day.

The advanced typewriting classes furnish typists for the Racquet and TOTEM and for the daily bulletin, thus playing an important part in school life now, while preparing themselves for a business life later, and so proving the real value of this course.

VOCATIONAL DEPARTMENT

The Vocational Department gives a great opportunity to young men for training in the various subjects which make up our great machine age. The Electrical course offers training in the operation and care of generators and electric motors; instruction in wiring; and a knowledge of the functions of current. This is an invaluable course because electricity is now one of the leading industries of our nation.

Mechanical drawing classes give training in drafting, a subject essential to modern engineering.

The Woodworking Department teaches cabinet-making, wood-turning, and moulding. Many articles of real value are made by the boys in this course.

The Printing Department offers an up-to-date training in the various requirements of the modern printing industry. The boys in this course set up and print many school programs and schedules.

The Machine Department, a whole machine shop in itself, teaches bench-work, lathe-work, milling, and planer and shaper work, a course indispensable to the would-be machinist.

The Automobile Departments gives instruction in the care, repair, and operation of the automobile. Therefore, it is wise, indeed, for any ambitious young man to take advantage of these varied modern courses offered by our Vocational Department.

ROMAN GALLEY

CLASSICAL DEPARTMENT

On the south side of Chestnut Street there stood, till the fire of 1866, a gray painted brick structure, Portland's first high school for girls, and on Spring Street, between Oak and High, another brick building—Portland's high school for boys. In the girls' school, Latin was required through the four years' course, nor was any girl permitted to register without it. In the boys' school, we find Latin on the curriculum as early as 1837. In 1863 the boys and girls moved to a new building which stood on the site our own school. In this new school the cultural value of Latin was considered as an essential background of real education.

Now, on our sixty-ninth anniversary, we still find our Classical Department filled with keen-minded boys and girls who once again conquer Gaul with Caesar, mete out punishment to Catiline, and follow Aeneas's flight from burning Troy to his new home in Italy.

In coming years, as these grown up boys and girls realize that because of the hours spent in classical study, a bit of poetry, a beautiful painting, or a statue speaks to them with an appeal impossible to those who lack this background; then, surely, each will say with the great poet Virgil, "Forsan et haec olim meminisse invabit."

MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT

Since the days of the ancient Greeks and Romans, mathematics has played an important part in man's progress, especially in trading. In the early days, in Egypt a knowledge of mathematics was necessary to build the massive structures of pyramids and temples, and later, in Greece and Italy to construct the beautifully proportioned temples to the gods.

For the Commercial student, the mathematics course offers a thorough training in business arithmetic. This gives the student a strong mental background for coping with the various problems that are found in the business world of today. For the Scientific student, it offers thorough training in the use of algebra, plane geometry, solid geometry, and trigonometry, all of which subjects are applied directly to the sciences. Algebra is necessary for the study of chemistry and physics; geometry and trigonometry for civil engineering.

But the real and practical value of mathematics is that it strongly develops the power to use the mental faculties quickly and exactly. This quickness and alertness of mind will enable one to solve the various difficult problems that confront him daily in the quickest possible time and in the surest and the most efficient manner.

HOME ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT

In the early days of our country, a girl was thought to be sufficiently educated if she were well trained in the art of homemaking. Now, although a girl needs education in many other branches, homemaking is still an all-important part in her education. It is the purpose of our Home Economics Department to give each girl this training. Here a girl is taught to prepare not only appetizing, but also wholesome foods, to decorate a home tastefully, and to spend small incomes wisely.

In addition to doing their regular classroom work, the girls in the department have had many outside projects. The sewing classes made thirty dresses and suits and many dolls and stuffed toys at Christmas time. The food classes made cookies and candies. All of these articles went to charitable organizations. Four days a week, the senior class in dietetics and nutrition cook and serve lunches at noon for the faculty. During the week before Christmas, this class gave a Christmas party in the adjoining suite. Decorations in red and green, designed by the girls, made the tables very attractive. Mr. Jack, Miss Robinson, and Mrs. Lowe, were the invited guests. Pictures reproduced elsewhere in the book will show other class activities.

MODERN LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT

A pupil may receive excellent training in French, German, or Spanish in the Modern Language Department. The French Department, which is divided into two groups, college and general, not only acquaints the student with the language, but also with the geography and history of those French patriots who so generously sent troops to help us gain our independence in the Revolutionary War and who have remained the friends of our country ever since. American tourists in France have found that even their high school French has been of inestimable value.

The German Department, introducing German literature and German writers to the student, brings him nearer to the new Germany, which, although deeply in debt, is making a firm effort to get on its feet.

The work of the Spanish Department is valuable because it promotes friendship with Spain and the Pan-American countries. Some knowledge of Spanish is essential in our increasing business relation with South America.

Some understanding of these European nations and their languages, and also of our neighbor to the South, will go a long way in establishing world peace and keeping our future free from all wars, controversies, and misunderstandings.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENTS

In addition to the regular teachers, Portland High has a capable staff of special teachers who keep the school routine from becoming dull by offering many chances to those students who are interested in sports, music, art, and public speaking.

The sophomore and freshman classes are required to take gymnasium work under Miss Wescott and Mr. Nelson. This course offers real recreation, as it is entirely different from other classes, and has proved very beneficial, especially to the student who is physically weak. Those who wish to go further in sports and physical culture play football, basketball, baseball, tennis, and hockey under Miss Cutts and Mr. Fitzpatrick, or enter track under Mr. Corey.

Mr. Rowe teaches penmanship, an art which many otherwise well-educated persons have failed to learn. In business, however, where typewriting cannot be used, good penmanship is now a necessity.

Students who prefer music may take either vocal or instrumental work. Miss Chase is the leader of the glee clubs and the orchestra. For the past two years, the glee clubs have given an evening entertainment in the form of a minstrel show which has been very popular. Mr. Rigby, Miss Chase's assistant, leads the band, which plays an important part in many of our assemblies and also at our football games.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENTS

Miss Thompson and Miss Flagg have charge of the Art Department from which artists for the Racquet and TOTEM are selected. From this department many pupils have entered higher art schools, and several are now making marked success in the art world.

Those interested in public speaking find valuable instruction in Mrs. Swain's classes. Mrs. Swain, also dean of girls, coaches the senior class play and the assembly and graduation speakers.

Miss Robinson is our capable and helpful librarian. Her knowledge of the books and the needs of the pupils make the Library reference work easier and the private reading of the pupils more beneficial.

The exacting demands of the office in a school of 1900 keep the force, consisting of Miss Curtis, Mrs. Edwards, and Mrs. O'Connell, busy both forenoon and afternoon five days a week.

The oldest activity of the school, that of the Cadets, is under the supervision of Captain Karl Palmer. The Annual Cadet Ball occurs in April when the cadets of both Portland and Deering distinguish themselves in competitive drills and contests.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

This year, while we are celebrating the bicentennial of George Washington's birth, and the anniversaries of Portland's founding and incorporation, it is well that we should consider the history of our own school.

The first high school, a Latin school for boys, was established in 1821 on Exchange Street, but was later moved to Center Street, where it remained until 1829, when an English High School was provided to fit boys for business and trade, and buildings for the two schools were constructed on Spring Street. This arrangement did not prove popular, and the schools were reunited under the charge of Master Libby, a Bowdoin graduate, who was revered by his pupils, although, as one of them said, "He carried a cowhide cane under his arm and honestly used it when needed."

Until 1850 there was no school for girls above the grammar grades. In that year, a high school for girls was started in a small house on Brackett Street, but soon it was changed to a new and larger building on Chestnut Street. This popular school remained the place of education for the city's young ladies until 1863.

The new school, built on the present location to care for both boys and girls, gave evidence of the strong prejudice against co-education. It was a three-story brick building with a brick wall extending through the center from front to back and from cellar to roof. The only means of getting from one side of the building to the other was through a door on the first floor, and the entrances were from different streets, the boys entering from Congress Street, the girls from Cumberland Ave.

SENIOR CLASS EXECUTIVE BOARD

Sitting: Elizabeth Flaherty, Eleanor Davis.
Standing. Paul Dimock, Elizabeth Moreshead, John Beals, Elizabeth McAllan, John Kelley.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

In 1894 there came a radical change when the whole interior of the building was torn away to give place to one allowing more freedom. In the spring of 1911 fire so destroyed the building that it could not be used until the following September. Within a very few days, however, the work was going on, although under unusual conditions, classrooms having been provided in the Natural History Building, the Y. M. C. A., the vestry of the Congress Square Church, and the Jefferson Theatre. In the fall, more permanent accommodations were found in the Casco Street School, City Hall, and Gray's Business College.

In 1917 work on the new high school was started, the old building being retained as the middle wing. This building was formally opened in 1919. In 1920 another fire occurred, but this proved to be a blessing in disguise as it destroyed only the old wing, which was rebuilt in harmony with the rest of the building.

The first high school opened with twenty pupils; our school has an enrollment of about nineteen hundred. How many of us stop to consider what this fact means to the taxpayers of Portland! How many of us realize, for example, that this building, equipped to prepare students for college, for business, or for a trade, cost approximately a million dollars! I believe that we do not appreciate the advantages in education that are ours, and in closing, I wish to leave with you this thought: The best way to show appreciation is to make at all times, the most of your opportunities.

CLASS PLAY MANAGEMENT

WHEN'S YOUR BIRTHDAY?

"When's your birthday?" Students, hearing this from all quarters, naturally wondered at the personal question, and teachers looked positively scared. Then curiosity reached the peak when a poster was placed on the bulletin board displaying, this time in type, the words, "When's Your Birthday?" However, further investigation showed that it was the title of the senior class play to be presented in the auditorium of the high school Saturday evening, April ninth.

On the night of the play the auditorium was filled with eager students, proud parents, and interested faculty members. The play went off with a precision worthy of professionals, and all parts were cleverly acted, showing that the untiring efforts of Mrs. Pearl C. Swain, teacher of public speaking and dramatic coach, had not been in vain. The success of the play was due to her coaching and to the coöperation of all senior members, including the principals and the board of management.

The cast gave splendid performance. The entire play held the close attention of the large audience, and the humorous hits brought bursts of laughter continuously.

WHEN'S YOUR BIRTHDAY?

The scenes of the play were all laid in the living room of Malory Dwight's homestead in New England. Leroy Snowdon, the leading man in the play, taking the role of Malory Dwight, gave an excellent portrayal of a big brother whose solicitude for an invalid sister exceeded his personal sorrows. Ann Parsons, played by Mary Sturgis, and Nabby Nash, played by Jessie Demmons, furnished humor throughout the play, but the most laughable character was Timothy Gale, portrayed by Herman Littlejohn. Beatrice Helfont, the feminine lead, gave an outstanding performance as Leonore, a young gypsy girl. Gerald Waxman, playing the part of an Arab magician, in the end, regained the girl Leonore, whom he had always loved so dearly.

SENIOR ROOM CHAIRMEN

Sitting: Mary Tibbetts, Virginia Ryder, John Kelley, Anne Sullivan, Elizabeth McAllan.
Standing: Sidney Greenberg, Elmer Hatch, Myer Marcus, Gerald Troiano, Paul Stewart.

SENIOR CLASS

To try to list the noble deeds of all the seniors on one page is sheer folly. Our athletes are too numerous to mention individually, so taking them in groups, we find the entire varsity football squad, with the exception of one or two boys, composed of seniors. A basketball team that swept through to win the Bates Tourney was drawn entirely from the senior ranks. The baseball and track teams showed a larger sprinkling of underclassmen, but seniors formed the mainstays of these sports. While mentioning athletes, we must not forget the senior girls who represented us. In basketball, Betty Flaherty, Lucy Oulton, Hilda O'Brion, Edna Hollywood and Dot Roache made names for themselves.

Field Hockey, which is not an interscholastic sport, found Florence Dunbar, Betty Flaherty, Bella Cope, Hilda O'Brion, Lucy Oulton, Alice Albling, Charlotte Fairbanks, Ruth Dunn, Mary Blodgett, Dot Roache, and Betty Moreshead carrying on for the seniors and winning their letters.

Our debaters, Madeline Corey, Alice Albling, Ruth Deixel, Leroy Snowdon, Blair Heywood, and Paul Stewart clinched the state championship by winning all their Bates League contests. Leroy Snowdon, senior class president, won the Spear Prize Contest, and represented the school in the state finals at Sanford.

In literary circles, we were more than well represented, the list including Beatrice Helfont, Ruth Deixel, Gerald Waxman, Wilson Fowler, Thomas Estes, Althea Cushing, Donald Mortensen, and William Carnes. Even Holland Smith, editor of the Racquet, confesses that he once found time to write a very short poem.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Sitting: Jane Roache, Reta Guptill, William Littlefield, Barbara Frazee, Elizabeth Dunbar.
Standing: Arnold Potter, Vincent Allen, John Bennett, Thomas Henry, Robert Craven, Vernon Orchard.

JUNIOR CLASS

When a student is a freshman, he is dazed; when a sophomore, he is in the process of awakening, but when he becomes a junior, he is right in the swing of all school activities. The class of 1933 has representatives in every sport and extra-curricular activity.

In sports, the junior class is superb with Vincent Allen, Jimmy Murphy, Edgar Striker, Jimmy Kane, James Johnson, and Tom Henry playing excellent football. Don Colello plays football and basketball and is a good baseball player. Tom Henry is one of the best men on the track team, which also includes George Mahoney. Maurice Glovsky was one of the best men on the crack basketball squad which won the Bates Tournament.

In the Red Cross activities Barbara Frazee has given outstanding service. She is also an active member of the Racquet and TOTEM Business Board. The mainstays of the Business Board have all been juniors—Arnold Potter, a member of the Junior Class Executive Board; William Littlefield, Class President, and Editor of the 1932-1933 Racquet; John Bennett, Business Manager; and Bertha Elowitch.

Turning toward literary activities, our attention is attracted by William Littlefield and Bertha Densmore who have been prominent in the literary contests, and to Althea Cushing, Walter Bojarczuk, and Paul McCarthy, who head the poet list. Reta Guptill, active in athletics, has been the class representative in the speaking field. The juniors are therefore well primed to take up the work of being seniors.

SOPHOMORE ROOM CHAIRMEN

Sitting: Ralph Harper.
Standing: Agnes Huszcza, Isabel Ray, Tena Horwich, Lucille Hersey, Barbara Spaulding.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

Entering school in 1931 as sophomores, this class has made a name for itself. They started out, as do all classes, by electing room chairmen. Next came the call for football material, and during the season Striker and Mulkern made a good showing. While the boys were making football history, three of the sophomore girls made the varsity hockey team—Lucille Hersey, Mary Jennings, and Mattie Robinson. On the track team, Arnold Brume has been bringing fame to P. H. S. as an outstanding runner. In February came the Spear Prize Speaking Contest when Harlan McCain, a sophomore member of the varsity debating team, was chosen as one of the ten members to compete for the prize. Geneve Iverson and James Jordan, appointed their freshman year, continued to serve as our Red Cross representatives. The sophomore class also has a poetess, Maxine Skilling, whose work has been published in the Racquet.

Soon after the opening of the basketball season, Coach Cutts promoted seven sophomore girls to the varsity basketball team. The list includes Mattie Robinson, Rhoda Wynne, Lucille Hersey, Mary Jennings, Kathleen Conant, Arlene Conant, and Mary McDonough. Several sophomores made the sub-varsity team which promises well for next season. The orchestra, band, and glee club each have a few sophomore representatives. It hardly seems possible that the school year is so soon over. Those who have been sophomores are now to take up their work as Juniors when they will continue to serve their school in ever widening fields of activity.

Sitting: Vera Fayle, Abraham Elowitch.
Standing: Phyllis Scott, Anna McDonough, Mindella Silverman, Priscilla McIsaac, Arlene MacWilliams, Mary Salvatore.

FRESHMAN CLASS

At ten o'clock Tuesday morning, the fifteenth of September, nineteen hundred thirty-one, an assembly of tumultuous freshmen suddenly became silent when a stately figure appeared before them. After a short speech by this man, who proved to be Principal Arthur W. Lowe, they were given a few guiding rules and instructions to follow and then assigned seatrooms. A few days later room chairmen were elected. Junior Red Cross Representatives were then appointed and Winthrop Frazee was chosen as the freshman member.

In December some of the freshmen wrote essays on "Christmas in Other Lands," and four of these were published in the Christmas Racquet. These included "Christmas in the Land of the Midnight Sun" by Evelyn Wold; "Christmas in France" by Lucie Naples; "Christmas in Italy" by Anna Pelosi; and "Chanukah" by Abraham Elowitch. Esther Leighton also wrote some very creditable poetry.

In the field of athletics we find the freshmen coming to the front. Dot Barker was elected captain of the freshmen Hockey Team and Marguerite Fisher was also an outstanding hockey player. When Coach Corey called for track men, Abraham Elowitch came rushing out; Morris Shepard was appointed Mascot of boys' basketball; and Abe Connolly made the team. In baseball we find Fred Chase, Abie Elowitch, and Raymond Dunn on the squad.

Many freshmen have also been made members of the school orchestra and band.

THE TOTEM

Following a custom of many years' standing, the Faculty Advisers of Portland High School publications selected, late in the year of 1931, a board of editors to produce the school yearbook, The Totem. The board of eleven, this year all members of the senior class, at once met and were addressed by the Editor-in-Chief and Faculty Advisers who brought to their attention the problems to be met.

Acting on the advice of the National Scholastic Press Association, each volume of the Totem has used one central theme around which the entire book is built. This year, Anniversaries has been selected as the central theme. Everything, as far as possible, has been tied up to this theme in general, and to Portland's double anniversary in particular. With this plan constantly in mind, every section of the book has been edited with utmost care by the board who feel that they have produced the most complete Totem ever published by the students of Portland High School.

THE TOTEM

Several changes have been made in the 1932 TOTEM. By these changes we hope we have made the yearbook more valuable and more interesting than ever before. Due to the splendid coöperation of the student body, a large and complete snapshot section has been compiled in which we have attempted to portray students as we see them in daily life.

The subscription campaign, planned by the Racquet and TOTEM Business Board and their Faculty Adviser, and aided by the boys in the Vocational Department, ended only when it had surpassed all expectations.

The aim of the editors the TOTEM all through the year has been to give to the student body a book which in future years will serve as a memoir of happy days of work and play spent in Portland High School. If we have accomplished this, regardless of what honors we might win in any contests, we consider our work a success.

THE RACQUET

The Racquet Board began its work with the publication of the May issue of last year, a custom which has existed for some years, thus enabling the new Board to benefit by the service of the old in their first issue. When October rolled around, the Board was ready to bring forth a Racquet entirely of its own production. First, however, a drive for subscriptions was put over. The whole Board "turned to" with true coöperative spirit, and, aided by speakers from their own number and the senior class who addressed individual session rooms, secured a creditable subscription list, but somewhat smaller than in previous years.

The November Racquet appeared as a football and Thanksgiving issue combined, with pictures of the stadium and the gridiron team and a write-up of each.

THE RACQUET

The annual Literary Contest also occurred in November, the results of which were printed in the December issue, along with a special Christmas dedication. The covers of the November and December issues were designed by Norman Thomas, art editor—the November in black and orange; the December in black and red on a green cover. Then came a vacation for the Board during mid-year examinations.

In February, we started a series of cover designs with pictures of old Portland. The February cover had a cut of the old Portland City Hall; the March number, a picture of the historic Clapp Mansion; and the April issue a picture of Widow Munjoy planting her garden. The May issue, which was turned over to the new Board, will probably continue the series, and also feature many unusual innovations.

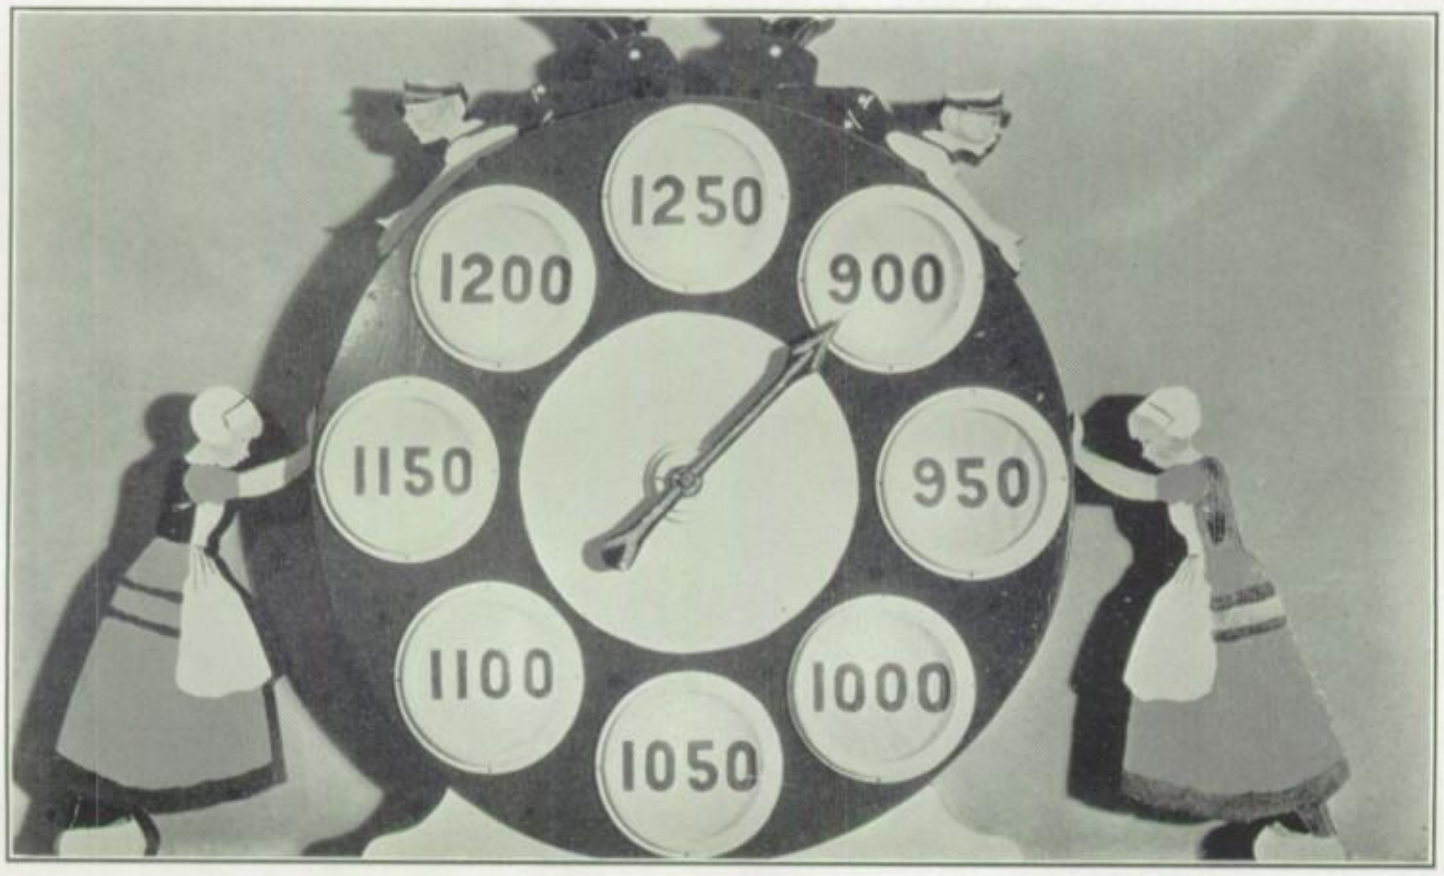
MOTION PICTURES

Portland High School, in keeping with other modern schools, has added a portable motion picture projector to its equipment. This machine is at present used chiefly in the Science Department, but it is planned to extend this new form of instruction to other departments.

Geography taught in this manner takes the student right to the places about which he is studying. He sees the rubber and tea plantations of the East Indies, the silk mills of Japan, the sugar and tobacco in Cuba. Pictures produced lately take one far underground to the great iron, coal, and copper mines of our own country. In the shops, the talents of the greatest engineers will supplement the practical work of the classroom. Engines, dynamos, and other types of machines are taken apart on the screen and explained in detail, enabling the student to get a clear idea of the functions of machinery that is far too expensive for the school to own. Pictures are very valuable in teaching history. Washington crossing the Delaware to defeat a British army would be just an ordinary historical event if it were not stamped on our minds by that famous picture that appears in nearly all histories.

While our present equipment does not embrace talking pictures, such rapid progress is being made in the development of "talkies" for schools that these also will be furnished for all departments in time. This will be a reality that far surpasses the wildest dream of the most progressive educators of twenty or twenty-five years ago. It will be but a few years hence before the greatest orators, educators, and scientists appear and lecture in the classrooms of a thousand schools on the same day.



THE TOTEM CLOCK

THE TOTEM CLOCK

An advertising project so noteworthy and unusual that it received special attention from The Scholastic Editor, a magazine devoted to journalism in high school, was developed and carried out by the 1931 TOTEM Board. The idea of the TOTEM clock pictured above was developed by A. Randall Sanford, Editor of the 1931 TOTEM, Norman Cronk, Associate Editor, and John Petitpaw, Business Manager. The clock was constructed entirely in the Shop Departments of our own school and is an excellent piece of work.

As a forerunner to the appearance of the Totem clock above the main entrance of the school, tags were distributed among the students announcing, "The Time is Coming." Shortly after, cardboard covers were placed over the faces of the clocks in all rooms of the school declaring that it was "Time to Buy A TOTEM." This covering of the clock faces aroused considerable indignation among the clock watchers of the school, as they could no longer indulge in their favorite pastime. Thus began the most successful advertising campaign that the TOTEM has ever conducted. Though a different plan has been followed this year, the clock has again been used to announce paid-up subscriptions.

It is this kind of originality, typified by the TOTEM clock project, coupled with the work of previous TOTEM Editorial Boards and the splendid coöperation of our faculty advisers, that has won recognition for the TOTEM as the leading high school yearbook in Maine, as well as the consistently higher honors in the National Journalistic Conference, whose announcements are eagerly awaited by the TOTEM Board.

CLASSICAL FORUM

Fourteen times the year has rolled around since the founding of the Portland High School Classical Forum. Under the guidance of Miss Morse and her assistants, the club has grown to a membership of about three hundred. The object of this organization is "to strengthen, extend and improve the study of the Classics in Portland High School." So very fittingly there have been celebrated in its programs many festal days and anniversaries. For instance, a play suited to the observance of the Saturnalia was given, and last year a whole program was devoted to the honoring of the poet Virgil whose two thousandth anniversary was being celebrated throughout the world. The first meeting this year was directed by Mrs. Paine. A varied program was arranged, consisting of dances, musical numbers, and a short play, "Baucis and Philemon." Jack Jordan, one of the Counsuls for the year, presided.

CLASSICAL FORUM

In the second meeting, which was supervised by Miss Mann, Winthrop Walker in opening, stated that the subject for the afternoon was Greek and Roman Myths, and reminded us that much in modern life, in art, in literature, and even in advertising is enhanced by a knowledge of these myths. A short talk on their origin was followed by the recital of several of these stories by various members. Each was illustrated by a group, posing to represent some famous painting on that subject. Several pieces of statuary also were illustrated by living models, while the story of Pygmalion and Galatea, arranged as A Sculptor's Dream, was being read by Ruth Deixel. Both of these meetings were followed by a dance in the gymnasium. The third program of the year was the annual Frolic which, as usual, aroused much interest and enthusiasm. Musical numbers and other specialties were interspersed in the regular dancing.

FRENCH CLUB OFFICERS
Myer Marcus, William Littlefield, John Presnell.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

Le Cercle Francçais, the only student honor society in our school, is one of the most progressive and popular organizations. Its primary purpose is to further the French student's ability to understand the French language more clearly and to speak it more fluently, putting special emphasis on its everyday use in conversation. The only requirements for membership in Le Cercle Français are that students have passed successfully at least one year of French and have attained through their entire course a rank of 80% or better.

A year ago, noting that the large unwieldly groups which met each month in the assembly hall were receiving little if any benefit from the programs presented, a committee of French teachers decided to hold monthly meetings of the eligible pupils in their respective classes. The pupil is now able to test out his ability in French more readily, as only French is spoken in these meetings which are attended by ten or twelve pupils. The new plan has worked out very successfully. French games are played and French stories told. However, the last meeting "La Fete Francaise" was open to all students of French, and a regular program of specialty numbers and dancing was enjoyed.

Therefore, if every member of this club coöperates in carrying out the special projects and the monthly programs, Le Cercle Français is sure to attain its goal—that of giving to its members genuine confidence in the use of the French language.

PLANNING FOR LAFAYETTE'S VISIT
Olivia Cooney, Donald Mortensen, Alice Miltimore.

LAFAYETTE'S VISIT TO PORTLAND

This year Le Cercle Français has been especially interested in the Marquis de Lafayette's visit to Portland. In 1825, Lafayette, that brilliant soldier and staunch supporter of liberty both in America and in France, promised a committee of Portland citizens that he would visit the town before the completion of the tour he was then making through our young republic. On June 25 of that year, after his trip from Boston, Lafayette was greeted by several companies of infantry and the committee of prominent citizens. Henry Longfellow's father, Stephen Longfellow, gave the welcoming address. Every street and every home was gorgeously decorated with arches, flowers, and other symbols of the appreciation and affection which the people of Portland extended to him, the unselfish donator of his services to our hero, George Washington, and to our cause during the struggle for freedom. Everybody turned out to gaze upon Lafayette as he rode through the tree-lined, shady streets, many of whose landmarks may still be seen although some have given way to modern progress. After all the important ceremonies of the visit were over, a public dinner was held. On this occasion, Lafayette gave a toast to the future of the State of Maine and to the town of Portland. Numerous other important events took place in the evening. The next morning he left quietly for New York, thus recording in history one of the most important events in the three hundred years of our city's existence. It is also worthy of note that General Lafayette spoke almost perfect English.

JUNIOR RED CROSS COMMITTEE
Sitting: Josiah Drummond, Barbara Frazee, Winthrop Frazee.
Standing: Geneve Iverson, Ralph Davis, James Jordon.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

The Junior Red Cross Committee, under the supervision of Miss Frances Haskell and Miss Ethel McCallum, has done its share of service this year. At Thanksgiving the committee of eight students, two from each class, started the work of aiding the needy. Dinners were distributed to ten families, feeding a total of fifty-eight people; baskets of candy were sent to Opportunity Farm; and one hundred and five glasses of jelly were sent to Red Cross Headquarters.

Then Christmas came, and the Junior Red Cross not only gave candy and gifts to the boys at the farm, but also donated money to the Portland Evening Express Santa Claus. There was still much more to be done than the committee could handle, so Miss Bigelow's senior girls took upon themselves the task of caring for two families. Later, Miss Tolman's senior boys assumed the entire responsibility of one of these families until the end of the year.

Once again, the Junior Red Cross turned willing hands to Opportunity Farm and brought happiness to the boys on Valentine's Day. The annual gift of $50 was also presented. Appeals for warm clothing have been made constantly to the student body through the daily bulletin. Mr. Tarr, of the Vocational Department, and Mrs. Tarr have been able to assist the committee in placing this where it has been greatly needed. And so passes a brilliant year which saw the 1932 chapter of the Junior Red Cross far surpassing the record of all previous years in their readiness to serve.

ART CLUB

Sitting: Pearl Huston, Beatrice Helfont, Helen Mansise.
Standing: Eleanor Dority, Mary Tibbetts, Mary Craven, Mary DeGrasse.

ART CLUB

The Art Club, under the supervision of Miss Flagg, began their annual activities in January. The aim of this organization is to create an interest in art and the great artists, and to help the individual member to progress in art and art appreciation.

The meetings, this year, proved to be of unusual interest and variety. At one of these, lantern slides were made and colored by the members themselves and afterwards shown in the electric lantern with much success. Commercial advertisement was the subject of another meeting, and the representation in silhouette of our modern advertisements was amusing as well as instructive. Miss Lillian Welch of the Portland School of Fine Arts gave a very interesting talk to the Art Club members on "Art as a Profession." At later meetings plans were discussed and preparations made for the Art assembly which was held on April 29th. The theme was woven around Portland and her history. Many novel and amusing features were introduced, among which was the picturization of Portland Head Light done entirely by pinning different colored cloths on a canvas. The assembly was under the directon of Miss Thompson.

Plans are now being enthusiastically discussed for several sketching trips to the nearby shore and other spots of interest of which Portland can be so justly proud and whose beauty attracts hoards of professional artists every year. The members are also looking forward with eager anticipation to the annual picnic late in June.

LEAGUE DEBATERS

Sitting: Selma Wolf, Celia Cohen, Madeline Corey, Beatrice Helfont, Alice Albling.
Standing: Blair Heywood, Harlan McCain, Ruth Deixel, Leroy Snowdon, Paul Stewart.

DEBATING

This year, the veteran debaters of our school have had a brilliant career. In the first round against South Portland, December 18, our negative and affirmative debaters both won, with a score of 7 to 2. On January 9, occurred the semi-finals at Bowdoin in which we won 5 to 4, the same score for negative and affirmative, the subject of the debate being Resolved: That Maine Should Permit the Export of Surplus Water Power. On the same day were held the finals at Bowdoin against Brunswick, the affirmative winning 6 to 3, the negative losing 7 to 2. Here we took second place.

In the Bates League, Resolved: That the Several States Should Adopt Compulsory Unemployment Insurance, the first round occurred March 18 at Rumford, when our negative won 2 to 1. At Portland High, we won over Lewiston, with a score of 2 to 1. On April 15, in the semi-finals at Bates, the affirmative won over Milo, 2 to 1, as did the negative. On April 16, came the finals at Bates. Our affirmative beat Berwick Academy, last year's champions. Then, too, our negative conquered Brunswick, the Bowdoin League champions. This gave us the championship of the Bates League of 62 schools, and the State Championship.

Our total record of the last six years is fifty-six victories out of sixty-seven. In the Bates League, we have been twice champions; twice in the finals and twice in the semi-finals. In the Bowdoin League, our team have been once the champions.

PRIZE SPEAKING CONTEST

Sitting: Beverley McNair, Beatrice Helfont, Reta Guptill, Madeline Corey, Ruth Deixel.
Standing: Gerald Waxman, Harlan McCain, Alice Albling, Leroy Snowdon, Paul Stewart.

SPEAR PRIZE SPEAKING CONTEST

The first Spear Prize Speaking Contest occurred in the spring of 1921. At that time, Senator Arthur G. Spear, President of the Spear Candy Stores, offered two prizes in honor of his mother, fifty dollars and twenty-five dollars, to the winners in the contest in each of the two Portland high schools. Several years later, at his suggestion, the state was organized into ten districts, in each of which public speaking contests took place. The winners in each district then met in Augusta in a final State contest to compete for three prizes, seventy-five, fifty, and twenty-five dollars, also offered by Mr. Spear whose interest in public speaking began when he was a student in Bridgton Academy.

The Prize Speaking Contest for 1932 took place in the High School auditorium on the evening of February 12 with the following program: "Washington, the Citizen Soldier" by Hon. John J. McSwain, Harlan McCain; "Yellow Butterflies" by Mary Raymond Andrews, Alice Albling; "Boots" by Rudyard Kipling, Ruth Deixel; "The Seamless Robe" by H. Christian Troutman, Paul Stewart; "On the Wire" by Robert W. Service, Gerald Waxman; "Jean Desprez" by Robert W. Service, Madeline Corey; "How the La Rue Stakes Were Lost" by C. W. THE PORTLAND HIGH BANK

This year the bank has reached its fifth anniversary. Within this short space of time the bank has grown until today it is one of the leading organizations in the school. Formerly it was under the supervision of Mr. A. Everett Strout, but with his appointment to the principalship of Butler School, Miss Ek took over the advisership and has completed a successful year.

The policy of the Portland High School Bank is not to make rich men and women of the pupils but to cultivate in them a sense of thrift. The management is entirely in the hands of students. As it is modeled after larger institutions, we find filing cabinets, printed forms, and ledger cards. Upon opening an account, with any amount from one cent up, the student depositor receives a bank book in a folder with his name and an account number on it. When an account has reached the sum of one dollar, it is transferred to the Maine Savings Bank, where an account is opened in the student's name. Then the depositor receives a bank book from the Maine Savings Bank which entitles him to withdrawal privileges. Tranfers are made once a month.

It is very gratifying to know that the number of depositors has increased, as has the size of deposits. The bank has become a recognized means of saving for various school functions such as the Washington trip, made the senior year, the TOTEM, and the Racquet, the Junior Promenade, and the graduation dinner dance.

MR. LIBBY

A TYPICAL CORRIDOR SCENE

To a student of English "Lit," "Gray's Elegy" will always bring the memory of one of the best loved teachers in Portland High. He will see again the quizzical face with its crown of iron gray hair, and the keen eyes twinkling with humor; the ever changing corridor group waiting their turn at book reports; and will hear that voice, like none other in the world, hurling questions to confound the would-be bluffer. He may hear the singsong phrase of "The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea," as some senior hesitatingly mumbles the words with which he must become familiar. The Elegy out of the way, the real fun of the year begins. Outside reading totaling 7,200 pages is the minimum requirement and book reports become the order of the day. The crowd begins to assemble near the chair about eight in the morning and the above scene is most typical.

Mr. Libby's interpretation of Charles Lamb, of whom he is an ardent admirer, and his unusual ejaculations will long be remembered by the students who admire his lore even though some fail to comprehend it. Appreciation of this lack of comprehension has often caused "Luke" to refer to himself humorously in the words of his beloved Lamb, who wrote to his friend Thomas Manning: "He causeth his neighbors to speculate strangely on the state of the good man's pericranicks." Perhaps students do not always understand the pedagogue, but the man they love and respect.

The Annual Cadet Drill and Ball, held in the City Hall Auditorium, Friday evening, April 15th, marks the fortieth anniversary of this event, and brings to a climax a year of drilling and training. In preparation for this, the boys, under the watchful eye of Captain Karl Palmer, military instructor, have been forced to drill three and sometimes four days a week. Despite this, they gladly gave their time so that they might make a favorable showing before the public.

This drill is presented by the combined corps of Portland and Deering High Schools who compete with each other for honors. This year the honors were evenly divided. Company B of Portland High, commanded by Captain Robert A. Bonner, won the competitive drill and was awarded a cup by the Ralph D. Caldwell Post. The Deering High Battalion won the battalion drill and was presented a cup by the Harold T. Andrews Post. After the drill, commissions were awarded, and the combined cadet corps presented Captain Karl Palmer with an electric clock.

This drill is not the last public appearance of the cadets, for they also march in the Memorial Day Parade. At the close of school, the cadets separate for the summer. Some combine business with pleasure by enrolling in the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Fort McKinley. This is, in a way, a vacation, but at the same time it gives one an idea of actual military life from the viewpoint of a real soldier and furnishes a fitting close for the cadet year.

FOOTBALL

Boasting the lightest team in years, Portland High School, with but four veterans, opened its season on October 3 by holding a highly favored Deering eleven to a 7-2 defeat. The occasion was the dedication of the new Portland High School Stadium, which has been pictured on the two preceding pages. The opening of this stadium was the realization of a dream of many years' standing. Simple ceremonies marked this initial game which was played before enthusiastic Blue and Purple spectators. Prior to the opening whistle, Mr. "Ed" Cram tossed the swineskin to Coach Fitzpatrick and then the game was on. The Fitzmen showed an impressive fighting spirit that was to carry them on through the season. "Johnnie" Kelley and "Pop" Manley, who were both team leaders, also co-starred and played a great defensive game for Portland High.

On October 10, the Blue traveled to Bangor to avenge the defeat of last year. The Fitzmen were successful in handing a 14-6 defeat to the favored "Crimson Tide." Trailing Bangor in the first few minutes of the first period, the Blue came back to lead the "Tide" 7-6 at half time. The Blue team of the last half was a different team from that of the first half, and outplayed the "Tide" in every department of the game. Tom Connor and "Pop" Manley, responsible for our touchdowns, played an exceptionally good game. In the forward wall, Kelley, Seay, and Pistaki were outstanding, but all showed team work which promises well for future games.

FOOTBALL SQUAD

Second Row: Richard Bogh, Edgar Striker, Paul Dimock, Armand Skolfield, Coach Fitzpatrick, Donald Brown, Thomas Henry, William Hefler, William Moran.

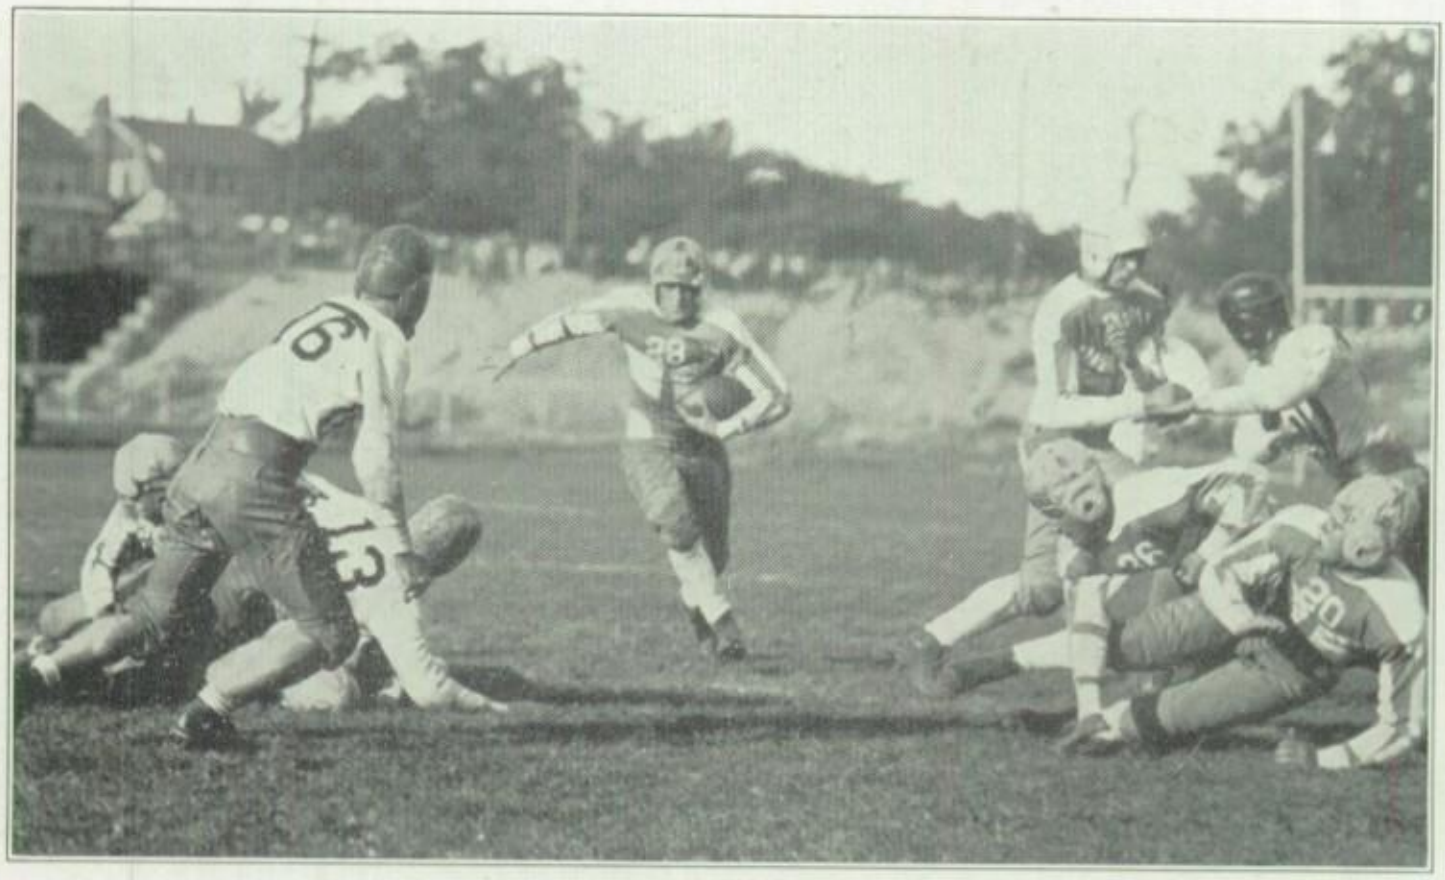
FOOTBALL

The following Saturday, October 17, the Blue met Westbrook in the Stadium. The Paper City lads surprised the Blue lads with their defensive show of power. The first half passed scoreless, due partly to the wet condition of the field. The Blue broke away, however, to score 12 points in the remaining periods. Bill Moran proved to be the outstanding player of the day. His runs were responsible for the two tallies. Mike Pistaki and Eddie Seay, the two running guards, blocked well. In the back field, Dickie Bogh and "Pop" Manley combined and played a good game. "Johnnie" Kelley stood out on the wing berth.

Bangor was the guest of the Blue on their second meeting of the season on October 24. Again the "Crimson Tide" fell before the onslaught of the lighter and faster Blue eleven. A perfectly executed pass, "Pop" Manley to Johnnie Kelley, brought on the first score. Laterals paved the way to a second score. In this game the team played as a unit, the line functioning perfectly. Outstanding were "Pop" Manley, and the pony backs, "Bill" Moran and "Dickie" Bogh. Allen, substituting for "Phil" La Pierre in the closing moments of the game, played well and "Johnnie" Kelley, team leader at end, ran the eleven well all day.

On October 31, the Blue traveled to Lewiston to play the Frenchmen, in one of the hardest fought games of the season. Outweighed in all departments of the game, the Blue carried the fight to the Lewistonites and scored an early period touchdown.



DEERING GAME

A 50-yard march from midfield with Manley, Connor, and Bogh carring the ball, was climaxed by Bogh's dash over the last marker. Rain favored the heavier Frenchmen in the last half, but the Fitzmen withheld the Lewiston offensive thrusts, which were climaxed by Portland's stand on their six-inch line. In the backfield, Bogh and Manley were outstanding. In the line, LaPierre, Kozicz, Pistaki, Backer, and Johnson played a steady game.

November 7, found the Blue lads in a slump, bowing to the championship Thornton Academy lads, to a 12-0 score. Except for a few occasional spurts, the Fitzmen never found themselves, and the Blue's few touchdown threats were halted by the superior playing of the Thornton Academy line.

Portland met a favored South Portland team at the stadium on November 14 and upset the dope by handing a 12-6 drubbing to the highly touted Capermen. Coming from behind, the Blue lads showed their best form by outplaying and toppling the Red Riot. Bogh, playing heady football, recovered a fumble and ran 22 yards for the first touchdown. Kelley, recovering a blocked field goal, attempted by South Portland, made a spectacular 75-yard dash for the second tally. The team, as a unit, played its best offensive game of the season and deserved its well-earned victory.

November 26 marked the last episode of Portland High's football season. This "Turkey Day Classic" brought together again the Purple and Blue. The Stadium was filled to its capacity by the followers of both elevens who witnessed one of the most colorful games of the season. In the last few minutes of the battle, the Blue played on equal terms with the favored Purple eleven, but the Purple, gaining the upper hand, had pinned a 14-2 defeat on the Blue. Much credit should be given to Coach Fitzpatrick for developing a successful team from very few veterans, and also to Andy Pettis, whose second team showed talent, and will be called upon to fill the ranks so depleted by graduation.

Last, but not least, we wish to extend our hearty thanks and appreciation to Mr. Edward Cram, Mr. John Murphy, Mr. William Dougherty, Mr. Richardson, and the Stadium Commission for their great effort and work toward making the dream of a Stadium become a realization. As a result of their labors, the future will find both the boys and girls of Portland High School participating in sports on this new athletic field, which will also have track, hockey, and baseball all within its boundary.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

In the most successful season of the past decade, Portland High School smashed its way to the championship of southwestern Maine, but lost the State Championship by one point to a powerful Presque Isle quintet. Starting with a mediocre squad the Blue lost to a strong Alumni aggregation by a 45-39 margin, but the following week took over a fast Deering team, 28-24. On January 9, playing a sparkling game, Portland trampled on Bangor 40-20 at the Queen City. However, in the next battle, South Portland dropped in two last-minute fouls to hand the Blue its first defeat, 23-21. Then the Bangor team came here for the second game, intent on revenge. When the slaughter was over, Portland had a 54-20 victory in the highest scoring game of the season, Camille Lafavore alone scoring 24 points. After this the team hit a "slump" and dropped the next game to Edward Little at Auburn.

At the Exposition Building, before a capacity crowd, an undefeated Caper machine was snowed under by a 41-29 score, taking the worst trimming in five seasons.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

The next week, the Blue displayed a sudden reverse of form and lost to Lewiston by a 23-24 margin. This was the first time in years that the two Blues had met on the court, and the Portland loss may be attributed to over-confidence. In the next game with Thornton, Tate, taking the place of the injured Bill Moran, led the team to a decisive 39-28 victory, and in the final game with Deering, Lafavore and Backer led in a one-sided romp, 42-25.

The Blue was a unanimous choice for the Bates Tournament and was paired in the first game with Cheverus, winning by a 28-25 margin. In the semi-finals, Portland outclassed Morse, 30-14, and, in the final game with South Portland, grabbed a 24-18 decision, and with it the Western Maine Championship. The game with Presque Isle for the State Championship at Orono was a "heartbreaker." Portland led until the last half- minute of play when Clark, P. I. guard, dropped in a long shot to make the winning margin in the 31-30 struggle and thereby cop the championship.

TRACK

The track season of 1931-1932 was not a brillant success, but at least it gave a comparatively green team much practical experience. The Interclass Meet opened the season on January 16 with the Seniors piling up a decisive score of 78 points to win over the Sophs who showed surprising power in amassing 44 points. The Juniors and Frosh trailed with 16 points and 4 points respectively.

The regular season opened January 30 at Portland when we downed the strong Thornton Academy team 82½ points to 67½ points. Captain Bob Norton, twice the man of the hour, starred. The next duel took place at Deering on February 6. The well-balanced Purple team won the encounter by a score of 122 to 28. The box corners as usual proved difficult for our runners.

Going out of their class, the Blue team traveled to Brunswick on February 10 for dual meet with the Bowdoin Frosh. The score was 110 to 13, the Frosh winning. Tom Henry starred in the discus throw, and Bob Norton also scored in the dashes.

TRACK

A relay team composed of Halloran, Brume, Norton, and Dimock went to Boston February 13 to the B. A. A. Relays, and finished third. On February 20, the Blue team bowed down to the well-balanced team of South Portland in the Capers' Gym. The Portland boardsmen amassed 37 points to South Portland's 112. Tom Henry turned in a new gym record in the shotput.

On March 5 Portland suffered severely in losing Captain Bob Norton, through illness. The loss was felt greatly by the team at the annual four-cornered meet, which was held at the Exposition Building. The well-balanced and high-scoring opponents, South Portland, Deering, and Thornton had things quite their own way. South Portland, amassing 79½ points, won this affair, followed by Deering. Portland's only outstanding man was Arnold Brume, while Henry did well in his event.

On March 12 the Blue team again traveled to Brunswick to compete in the annual Bowdoin Interscholastics, an event which brought the track season to a close.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The basketball coach, Jeanette Cutts, had a serious problem confronting her when she called the girls together, for Lois Nickerson and Rita Hollywood were the only letter girls left from last season. However, she was able to use some the girls from last year's Freshmen team, as well as last year's sub-varsity, and after two weeks of hard practice, the girls, following the old-time custom, met the Alumae. They played a hard game with the result that the Alumnae were ahead by only two baskets when the game ended. The girls next journeyed to Augusta. The experienced Cony sextet was too much for them, and they were defeated. Our team was highly praised for their good sportmanship and their clean playing.

The Blue girls next played Lewiston and were again defeated. In spite of all the battling to break up Lewiston's passes, the game ended in Lewiston's favor. We next met the Paper City girls, and the guards of both teams kept the teams scoreless until the third period. Westbrook then broke loose, as did Portland, but Westbrook came out on top. Oulton and Hollywood kept the score low, starring for our school.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM IN ACTION

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The following week came the South Portland game. The Capers did not expect such strong opposition and we gained the lead in the second quarter, but the Capers came back to take over the game. Fisher was the outstanding player for the Blue, making all of our points but one. Lois Nickerson suffered a leg injury and was lost to us for the remainder of the season.

The Deering girls invaded our gymnasium and defeated the Portland sextet, 38-16. Then the Capers came across the bridge for another game, which once again ended in defeat for us, although Oulton and Lynch proved to be very capable.

February nineteenth found the Westbrook girls on our floor. We led until the third quarter, but then fell down on the job and were again defeated. Hollywood and Oulton played outstanding games as guards. The Lewiston game was postponed, and no other suitable date was found. Portland went down to defeat against Cony, but this game was not such a walk-away as the score shows. Mary Jennings and Mattie Robinson starred. The last game was played at Deering, and the girls were again defeated. Reta Guptill who had not seen much action, played a stellar game.

FIELD HOCKEY

Girls' field hockey got away to a firm start this year when more than forty girls responded to the first call of our new coach, Miss Jeanette Cutts. Much better facilities were provided for the team this year, as a part of the school's new athletic plant was laid out as a regulation hockey field. With an excellent surface to play on, arrangements were made for the use of lockers in the Exhibition Building, making it much more convenient to hold practice sessions.

Field hockey has not yet been elevated to the position of a major sport, and as practice was late in starting this year, no interscholastic contests were played, but a class tournament was arranged as in the past two years. The seniors, having one veteran, went through their schedule of four games undefeated and copped the tournament. The sophomores, however, were the real surprise of the tourney, defeating the freshmen and juniors and putting up a stiff battle against the seniors.

BASEBALL

Last year Portland smashed its way to a decisive Telegram League Championship. The team was made up of a group of veterans and as all but two of the lettermen graduated last year, Fitzy was forced to fill up the resultant gaps with green material. The result was the hardest hitting team in the loop, but a team weak in pitching and defensive play.

In the first game of the season, the Blue went down to defeat before a powerful Westbrook team. In the next game Portland hit its stride and battered a sturdy Sanford team 17-3. In the return game, however, the Plush Towners turned the tables.

TERCENTENARY

Ruth Deixel, '32

Down to the hollow of Casco Neck,
Crowned with the emerald of regal fir,
Came Tucker and Cleeve, three centuries past,
Straight to a harbor of refuge at last.
Straight through the dotted azure bay,
Fearless, bold, whom none might stay,
Seeking new homes in a virgin land,
They beached their ships on the clear, white sand.
The balsam pine was felled for logs,
To keep out the nearing winter's fogs;
The settlers rose in the damp of dawn
To turn the unbroken soil for corn;
They labored, they struggled, with mighty will,
To keep their huts on the verdant hill.
The savage red-skin burned and slew—
In two-score years the north-wind blew
O'er a desolate region of cindered wood,
Sweeping down where homes once stood.

The wild lay free four decades more,
Till Samuel Moodey stepped ashore
Where the the present city of Portland stands.
And viewed the ruin of hostile bands.
Building now on the once-cleared soil,
Bending to well rewarded toil,
The settlers raised a sturdy fort;
Let the wild red savage have his sport!
Let the driving storm its havoc wreak!
The little colony was not weak;
It stood and prospered, spread and grew,
Traded with red-skins old for new,
Till on that placid, azure bay
Towers a mighty port today.
Portland, 'tis named, and well bequeathed
The settlement founded by Tucker and Cleeve.

We're Growing

on the quality-value policy on which this business was founded.

The present era of low prices has had the effect of making many new customers and friends for this store and the merchandise policy we have so carefully maintained.

At a time when so many standards have been forgotten, when so many qualities have been lowered along with prices—our strict adherence to the quality-policy on which this store has stood and expanded for 26 years—has attracted an ever widening circle of satisfied customers in northern New England.

Our business has shown that our people want better things; fresh, desirable merchandise and the newest Fashion creations—without extravagance. Years ago we pioneered in showing that smart fashions at moderate prices could be had. Today, we are pioneering again in showing that quality can be maintained at our today's prices, many of which are the lowest ever.

Eating

Do it right and win.

Breakfast is necessary to supply the fuel (as food) to start the body machine running.

Breakfast supplies food valuable for the needed morning energy.

To secure a sufficient amount of daily food without undue strain on the digestive tract—three regular meals daily are needed. Breakfast should be one of these meals.

Start the day right.

Be cheerful at breakfast!

Eat breakfast regularly!

Select appetizing, nourishing foods.

A good breakfast should include at least fruit, milk (as a beverage or in combination with other foods as toast, cereals or eggs) breadstuffs with butter or cereals.

"Success in eating as in business is due to a thorough knowledge of one's needs."
